

VOTERS LOVE RANKED CHOICE VOTING

Ranked choice voting (RCV) is a popular election reform, used in over 50 locations. Exit polls and post-election surveys consistently find that voters like and understand RCV by overwhelming margins.

Below is a collection of exit poll results from RCV jurisdictions around the country:

Jurisdiction	Year	Key Stats
Alaska	2022	85% said RCV is simple. 62% supported Alaska's new primary system.
Maine	2018	61% supported keeping or expanding RCV.
Boulder, CO	2023	86% said it was easy. 77% were satisfied with their voting experience.
Virginia Republicans	2022	56% who voted in primaries using RCV preferred it to single-choice elections.
20 Utah cities	2021	86% were satisfied with their voting experience. 81% found RCV easy.
Minneapolis, MN	2021	88% of voters found RCV simple. 76% wanted to continue using RCV.
New York City	2021	95% found their ballot simple to complete. 77% supported using RCV in future local elections.
Payson and Vineyard, UT	2019	82% wanted to use RCV again.
Eastpointe, MI	2019	85% found RCV simple. 70% wanted to keep using it.
Santa Fe, NM	2018	94% were very or somewhat satisfied with RCV. 71% supported RCV in future elections.
San Francisco, CA	2004	86% understood RCV well during its first use. 61% preferred RCV over the prior method.
Arlington, VA	2023	70% found their experience with RCV positive or fair. 56% wanted to use RCV again. (This was an unscientific survey.)